

Hollie Melinda Taylor Juhas

October 14, 1978 - November 6, 2016

Hollie was born on October 14, 1978 at Touro Hospital in New Orleans, Louisiana. Her parents are Joseph Juhas (deceased) and Marchetta Juhas. Hollie was raised in both Las Vegas and New Orleans. As a child, Hollie demonstrated a strong will to be independent.

Hollie grew up with four siblings; three younger sisters, Tracie, Lori and Jodi; and two younger brothers, Joseph (Joe) and Jonathon (Johnnie), all residing in New Orleans.

Hollie was steadfast in her faith in God even at a young age. She joined Greater New Jerusalem Missionary Baptist Church in Las Vegas and was a faithful member there until her health no longer permitted.

Hollie attended high school at Fisher High School in Lafitte, LA. She was destined to help others by always putting their needs before hers. She worked as an event manager at Rhodes Ranch Golf Course where she founded Jessica's Children Foundation which helps and supports the children of slain parents. It has been in operation for 13 years and has helped many children. She also worked as a real estate agent at Remax Homestore.

Hollie was in her senior year at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas with graduation set for May 2017. She was a recipient of the prestigious Phillip J.

Cohen Scholarship. Hollie was an accomplished author and wrote several articles for the Rebel Yell student newspaper. She had dreams of becoming a sports journalist.

Hollie departed this life on November 6, 2016 at Desert Springs Hospital with her family at her side. She leaves to cherish her memories: her mother, Marchetta Juhas of Lafitte, LA; her husband, Robert B. Brooks; two sons, Jon Ross Juhas and Glenn Taylor, III; one step-son, Keanu B. Brooks of Las Vegas.

Also surviving Hollie are three sisters: Tracie Barrios; Lori Despeaux; Jodi Beasley; and two brothers, Joseph (Joe) Juhas Jr.; Jonathon (Johnnie) Juhas, all of Louisiana.

She also leaves a host of nieces, nephews, cousins and friends.
